

Pasture for Life Certification

Agreement for triennial inspections

Pasture for Life producers wishing to opt for certification via Pasture for Life's triennial inspection regime, must first commit to this agreement by signing below.

The triennial inspection agreement is based on one physical on-farm audit followed by two desk-top audits carried out by Pasture for Life's auditors. This protocol requires commitment from the producer to remain certified for three years. The benefit to the producer is a lower annual certification subscription (according to the OF&G schedule of fees), than would be payable if the producer chose to pay for certification and audit in each individual year – an option that is still available at the producer's choice.

The purpose of reducing the frequency of on-farm inspection under the triennial inspection agreement is to reduce cost and time expended by producers, but requires that producers abide by and operate to the standards at all times. Pasture for Life or its auditors reserve the right to audit more frequently if deemed necessary due to issues relating to non-compliance, and this may incur additional costs to the producer.

An important note: What if a producer wishes to terminate their certification before the end of their three year agreement?

Producers will be liable to pay exit fees which will be the fees still owing for the remainder of the entire three-year agreement. (This is because the cost of the physical inspection is incurred by the auditors in one of the three years, but paid back by the producer over three years.)
